We provide free training to the governmental public health workforce on strategic public health skills and priority health concerns.

We offer:

Virtual and in-person skills-based workshops

Live and on-demand webinars and lectures to increase knowledge on emerging issues

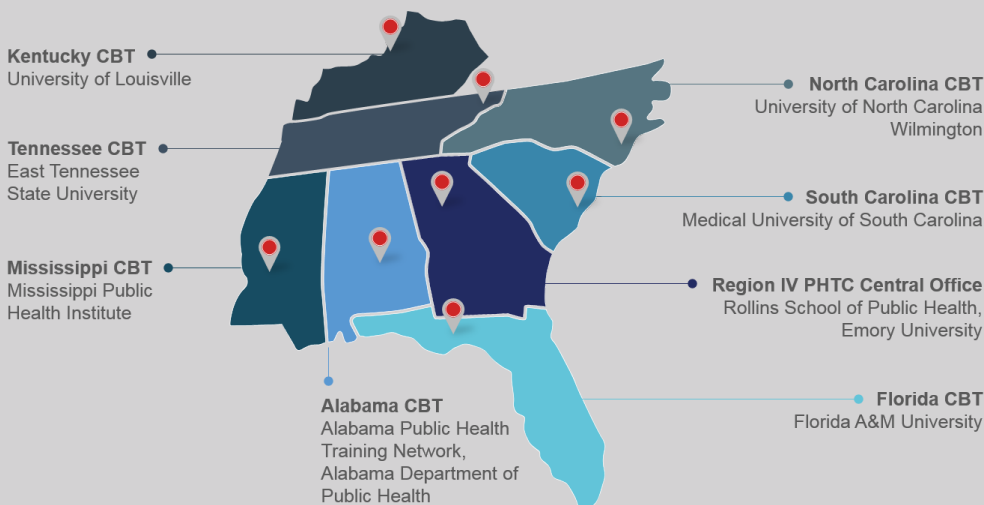

Training for adapting existing curricula to a distance-learning format

Each year we place over 30 public health students with agencies serving medically underserved communities.

The Region IV PHTC Learning Community

The Central Office and seven Community-Based Training Partners (CBTs) serve HHS Region IV and a national public health audience. Key partners include the University of Georgia, the University of Alabama at Birmingham and the National Network of Public Health Institutes.

We are a member of the

PUBLIC HEALTH LEARNING NETWORK
Educating Professionals,
Elevating Practice.
